Hanwei Sir Marshall Sword folded steel sets new quality standards in sword design. The sword is based on the original, currently in the British museum, used by one of the best knights of England, Sir William Marshall, who faithfully served the crown under the reign of Henry II, Richard Lionheart and Jack Lackland. This sword has a forged and folded blade with excellent handling characteristics. The blade is hardened to HRC 54 and has full-length fuller providing a perfect combination of speed and strength. The handle is wrapped and braided with leather, and the guard and head are elegant in terms of functional simplicity. The scabbard is covered with leather and steel fittings. Really a sword for a connoisseur.
